Upper Murray Community Recovery

Weekly Recovery Update - 16 November 2020

Are You Bugged Mate?

Mary O'Brien: "It's like being bogged, sometimes you can pull yourself out and sometimes you can't".

Mary is an agronomist from Dalby in Queensland who founded Are You Bugged Mate after losing two mates to drought-related suicide.

She has spent her life working in rural and remote Australia and says there's a disconnect in the way depression is being communicated to country men.

Her second language is agriculture, her third is "bloke", and she's coming to the Upper Murray to talk to locals in a way that no-one else can.

Are You Bugged Mate helps rural blokes talk about mental health, suicide and the 'mongrel black dog'.

She relates depression to getting bogged in the mud - it might just be a sticky patch where you need low range or a winch to pull you out, but what happens when you get properly bogged - when you aren't going to get out of this one easily?

"Country blokes are facing challenges like never before, but it doesn't mean you need to get stuck in the mud," Mary said.

"There are plenty of places to go to get a tow, and it takes guts to admit you're bogged."

Tell Your Mates, Bring Your Son

Mary O'Brien (pictured) is being brought to the Upper Murray by Corryong Baptist Church in conjunction with All Saints Anglican Church and will speak at two events.

At 7pm men are invited to a free roast dinner where sons are also encouraged to attend (age 15 and over).

At a women's lunch Mary will talk about why your men don't open up to you (minimum age 15).

BYO drinks, bring an esky or fridge space is available.

This event is dependent on Queensland border restrictions being eased on November 30, but for now, save the date. Numbers are limited to 100 under COVID rules.

First market brings people together

A sensational spring day attracted throngs of people to the Upper Murray Farmers' Market opening event for the season in Corryong on Saturday.

"It was a wonderful day for our first market in a very long time," said market co-ordinator, Fay Whitehead.

"In fact our last market was Towong Cup Day in March when the races went ahead without the horses because of floods - what a year this has been!

"A big thank you to all the people who came and so willingly supported the 26 stalls - it was great to see you all. You all appeared to enjoy catching up and going out.

"Thank you to all the people who so willingly signed the necessary register. Welcome also to our new stall holders and we hope that we will see you back again."

The winner of the raffle was Tash Tregilgas, which was generously donated to by the stallholders.

The next market is on December 12th and if the NSW border has been opened there will be cherries on offer.

Watch the Courier for more information about the next market.

Cenotaph reminds us of great sacrifice

Following the modified Remembrance Day service on November 11 in Corryong, a reader has sent us a photo of the cenotaph and the poem printed below that commemorated its unveiling in November 1926.

The monument was erected in memory of the Upper Murray soldiers who gave their lives in the Great War (1914-1918).

The Unveiling
(Author unknown)
O pause for a moment
where'er you may be,

Who breathe the sweet
air of this land of the free,
And ponder the question: "What more could they give,
Whose fate was to die that the nation should live?"

Today, where the Murray flows down from the snows,

And spreads its clear waters o'er land as it goes,
In honor of those whose brave spirits are flown,

The people unveil their memorial stone.

Its tapering finger that points to the sky,

Shall carry their names
to the throne up on high,

And firm as their hearts
when they fronted the foe,

Shall tell of their deeds
through the ages below.

So think of the hearts
that are mourning today,

For heroes who sleep
in a land far away,

And stand for a moment with uncovered

head,

While Corryong
district pays court to its dead.

Opportunity knocks

The Corryong Op Shop has re-opened its doors following easing of lockdown rules but currently no donations can be accepted until volunteers have been trained in line with current restrictions.

It is expected that donations will be able to be taken towards the end of the month but they must be booked in and will only be accepted on certain days.

The op shop is also seeking more volunteers so call in and put your name down.

All proceeds go to local schools.

Grant generates safety in a crisis

The Corryong Lions Youth Club Hall Committee has been successful in obtaining a grant from the Victorian government's Community Facilities fund.

The grant will provide a generator for the hall which will provide backup power supply to allow the ongoing use by the community, particularly when required to support an emergency event.

"Providing a generator that ensures power to the hall, will clearly strengthen the communities' resilience against natural disasters by providing for the ongoing functioning of the hall," said Lions' president, Lorraine Griffiths.

"The grant will also ensure the main hall is kept in a sound and safe condition through restoration of the flooring surface."

The hall was recently home to the BlazeAid team which provided significant support to the community following the summer bushfires. Many volunteers occupied the hall for meals, briefings and as a place of informal gathering for more than eight months.

The hall is open and accessible to use by all community groups and is well recognised as an important facility in the town.

"The fact that it is used for emergencies and many other group events, as well as family celebrations is an indication of the importance of the hall to the whole community," Lorraine said. "The committee wishes to thank Bushfire Recovery Victoria for their support."

Hall committee members Karen Paton and Lorraine Griffiths are pleased with news of their latest grant.

Letters to the editor:-

Pub changes direction

To the Upper Murray community:-

We have made the decision to change direction at Hotel Cudgewa so as to make things a little more manageable following Ralph's sudden passing in September.

Although we have tried to continue with happy hour each Friday we have struggled and so have decided we need to cease trading as a pub and instead operate as a function centre, BnB and retreat venue.

As a function centre we are able to cater for groups of 20 or more who book in advance and will tailor the catering/venue to suit your needs. For further enquires please get in touch. We will be taking bookings from January 2021.

We would like to sincerely thank everyone who has supported us and we look forward to serving you in a different capacity.

Carol and Tracey,

Hotel.Cudgewa.

Fencing thanks

After the fires there were cattle everywhere. There was no grass and no fences worth having.

Fencing was a priority but it seemed an impossible task to replace or repair them to be able to begin feeding out the fantastic donations of hay.

Then along came Kath, Forest, Alan and the crew! Here early and last to leave.

In there for the long haul, the Uniting Church team are still with us. They came to help with their smiles and goodwill to fence - and they did and still do.

Age does not weary them nor does the weather and most of our terrain.

Blackberries, snakes and tall grass are just a few of the obstacles to deal with but their sense of humour and goodwill never wanes.

Sometimes there will only be the two of them and most times they have a crew of similar 'like minders' who just get on with it.

They share the love around and the lucky ones who have met them love them.

The people who haven't met them or been lucky enough to share that love, know where they are and the reassurance they give that they will come when needed.

That reassurance has been a big part of the help they provide. They are there if we need them and are here for the long haul.

We thank you and all those who come to help you, and will be forever grateful for just being here or there when we need you.

~ The Grateful
Receivers
(Name supplied).

Budget should revitalise regions

Next week's 2020-21 Victorian State Budget is a critical chance to lay out a plan to restore Victorians' lives and livelihoods.

The lessons of 2020

have created unique opportunities for regional Victoria.

Enforced working from home has showed us it's possible to have a job in the city, while living in the country.

To encourage decentralisation, The Nationals have been pushing for a $250 million fund to be implemented in this year's State Budget.

The fund would support businesses and government agencies to permanently transform operations to allow their staff to work from home more often and live where they want to.

Supporting country communities to grow is a game changer for creating new, secure jobs and boosting investment in services, like health and education.

This year's budget must also invest in better roads and rail for regional Victoria.

Under the Victorian government progress on projects like the Kilmore Bypass, Shepparton Bypass, Ballarat Western Link Road (Stage 2) and Princes Highway (west of Colac) upgrade, has stalled or is now miles behind schedule.

Other projects, like the transformational Murray Basin Rail Project, have become a disastrous mess of cost blowouts that now need significant investment to fix Labor's mismanagement.

We can't afford to wait years for bold ideas to revitalise our communities.

Next week, we need action and investment in a realistic way forward that drives confidence and growth for regional Victoria.

Peter Walsh
Shadow Minister for Regional Victoria and Decentralisation &
Leader of The Nationals

Keeping it green all year

On the back of a recent announcement by the Victorian government of a $415,000 grant to deliver a sustainable, climate independent water supply for critical open spaces in Corryong, further contributions from North East Water and Towong Shire Council have taken the total funding to $850,000.

North East Water has committed $425,000 to the major project and $15,000 in cash and in-kind support will be provided by the council.

"The investment in recycled water infrastructure will keep critical open spaces greener and more drought resilient during drought and bushfire," said Towong mayor, Cr David Wortmann.

"The project is a great example of how we can invest in alternative water sources to recycle and re-purpose water while creating greener spaces for communities to enjoy."

By 2030, the Upper Murray is set to experience a 20 per cent decrease in surface water flows into the Murray River.

"Recycled water projects provide sustainable, climate-resilient water supplies to keep open spaces healthy, green and vibrant," Cr Wortmann said.

The project will be delivered by North East Water (NEW) and council by using recycled water from the Corryong wastewater treatment facility to irrigate public open spaces such as the recreation reserve, sports oval and golf course.

"We will be constructing a pipe system from the Corryong sewage treatment plant to the town's major public green spaces," said Rebecca Jhonston, NEW Executive Planning and Infrastructure.

"Treated recycled water will then be used to irrigate the local sporting oval, golf course and festival grounds. This will be a sustainable, affordable and drought-proof water supply that will keep the town's public spaces green over the hot and dry summer months."

The project is already underway and is expected to be completed by October 2021.

Take the guesswork out of water needs

A new tool has been developed to help farmers prepare for dry seasonal conditions before critical decisions need to be made.

The Summer Water Calculator is a simple and user-friendly livestock water calculator developed to assist farmers to estimate their livestock water requirements.

The web-based tool, which is also accessible on a mobile phone or tablet, was created and developed by Agriculture Victoria.

Land Management Extension Officer, Martin Hamilton, said the tool will take a lot of the guesswork out of farm dam water calculations.

"As a mobile-friendly web-based calculator, farmers can drive into their paddock, measure the water currently in their dam and enter the data along with their livestock numbers into the Summer Water Calculator," he said.

"They'll then know how long their farm dam water will last using this tool. It's that easy.

Mr Hamilton said the Summer Water Calculator enables farmers to make short-term calculations of current water storages.

"A dam will lose up to 40 per cent of its volume over summer through evaporation alone.

"While assuming no rainfall or runoff, the tool accurately calculates summer evaporation, livestock drinking requirements, dam volumes to determine how long the water will be available over summer."

Mr Hamilton added that the Summer Water Calculator can be used for multiple mobs and multiple water sources.

"I know many farmers who have failed to factor in losses due to evaporation in their water estimations," he said.

"They have then fallen short on their water supply and been caught out in the peak of summer.

"The tool will assist farmers in making important decisions about water allocations to avoid shortfalls in their water supply."

The new calculator complements the existing Farm Water Calculator tool which helps farmers gauge their total annual water usage, supply or deficit.

The Summer Water Calculator is available at <https://go.vic.gov.au/US2OcV>

Anglers hook up online

The popular Talk Wild Trout conference is back again this year but will use an online platform to bring more international speakers than ever before.

Victorian Fisheries Authority (VFA) CEO, Travis Dowling, said the annual conference was returning for its sixth year over a series of Zoom webinars from November 24 to 26 with the theme 'caring for trout'.

"The conference is funded by your fishing licence fees and the state government's $35 million Target One Million plan to get more people fishing, more often in more places," Mr Dowling said.

"Over three days, participants can watch presentations from trout enthusiasts, photographers, fishery managers and scientists from Victoria and around the world.

Keynote speaker from the United States, Sascha Clark Danylchuk, who works with the international 'Keep Fish Wet' organisation will be making an appearance to share her tips on best-practice fish handling and the science behind it.

Dr Paul Gaskell, freshwater biologist and fisher who runs the UK's Wild Trout Trust's 'Trout in the Town' program will also be presenting.

"Fisheries officers from Victoria's north east will be on hand to share their many stories from the field and how they go about looking after our trout fisheries," Mr Dowling added.

Other speakers and conference topics include:-

- World renowned fishing photographer, David Anderson, will explain how to capture the photo of a lifetime, while still ensuring your prized trout is healthy for release.
- VFA fisheries managers, Taylor Hunt and Michelle Wenner, will talk about managing and monitoring the wild trout fishery to safeguard it for the future.
- Paul Stolz from the Australian Trout

Foundation will outline the Victorian Wild Trout Strategy to protect, build and promote Victoria's wild trout fishery.

Mr Dowling said

the conference will also include Q&A sessions with speakers and Fisheries staff via Zoom webinars.

To register for the virtual conference from 24-26 November go to <https://vfa.vic.gov.au/recreational-fishing/events/talk-wild-trout-2020>.

- Ensure all reporting is up to date for all league executive and club meetings

Planning:

- Be actively involved in formulating and reviewing the processes and practices of UMFNL and develop and implement plans for continual improvement

Communication:

- Develop and maintain key relationships with all stakeholders including clubs, league executive, AFL NEB, umpiring body and local and social media platforms

Key Selection Criteria:

- Knowledge and understanding of AFL in the NEB region, specifically the UMFNL
- Commitment to community football and netball with a knowledge and understanding of league structures within the area
- Proficiency in use of computers, document presentation and of Microsoft applications which should include well developed word processing, spreadsheet and web-based skills

Captain steps up to leading role

After being the onfield leader at Corryong for the past two years, key forward Mitch Harris will take the reins as the Demons' senior coach next season.

The 2017 premiership player follows in the footsteps of his father Ron who coached the Dees to grand finals in 1990 and 1991, losing to the powerful Border-Walwa team that completed the hat trick in 1992.

"It's probably the honour of my life so far," said the 32-year-old sharpshooter.

"My endeavour is to personally contact everyone who has played for Corryong since 2016 and extend an invitation to them to help us rebuild our footy club.

"One of my priorities is to increase the level of junior engagement with players of all ages and abilities and that the playing group all train together so that we get positive outcomes across the board."

In other football news, three clubs have settled their football coaching appointments for 2021.

Cudgewa has re-appointed Brayden Carey

as senior mentor and Quinn Rooney will guide Tumarumba.

In a first for the league, Bulloh has appointed a trio of coaches in Joe Bolton, Kelvin Wallace and Josh Walters.

The Federal club was the only one to vote in favour of a merger and move to the Tallangatta league following a working party report earlier this year but a decision on the Swans' future won't be decided until the annual meeting next Thursday.

Prior to the 2020 season, the Swans had announced former player and league best and fairest winner, Brent Ohlin, as coach.

Border-Walwa is unlikely to participate in football or netball next season

Get together on the greens

The Rotary Club of West Albury is sponsoring a 'Community Gathering' at the Corryong golf course on Sunday November 29th for people to get together for some fun and a catchup plus a free barbecue and refreshments and some great prizes.

The event will be a 3-person ambrose over nine holes at 10am for a 10.30am hit-off. You don't have to be a regular golfer and juniors are most welcome (bring Mum and Dad for a hit). It costs nothing to play.

Get a team together or put your name down and a team will be arranged. Let Mark Collins know if you're playing on 0418 602 623 or email editorial@corryongcourier.com.au by Wednesday November 25th.

In other news, the Corryong Men's Golf Club will hold its annual general meeting on Wednesday November 25th at The Club at 5.30pm (social distancing rules apply).

The Walwa Golf Club will hold its annual general meeting on Sunday November 29th at the clubrooms at 2pm following the last round of the championships (social distancing rules apply).

The Corryong midweek mixed summer competition is played Mondays and Wednesdays (9/18 holes) 9.30am for 10 am start - all welcome.

Men's golf is played on Saturday (1pm for 1.30pm start). If wet, play will transfer to the Sunday at 1pm.

Bowlers face a busy time

The Club Pairs titles were contested during the past week and the men's event had 20 players, which was a great field and so good to see on the green!

The winning pair was Col Smedley and John Josipovic - good to have JJ back playing with us!

There were 16 in the ladies field, also an excellent turnout and the winning pair was Pat Sheather and Joan Jarvis, who played beautifully to be the only 3-game winner.

At social bowls on Sunday Noel Blake and Lesley Evans were the winners.

The Pennant team had a bye and this Saturday travels to Tawonga.

The Men's Championship Singles

will commence on Sunday 22nd, so it's a busy weekend for the men. The singles will continue on Sunday 29th. There will not be social bowls this Sunday.

The Ladies Championship Singles is scheduled for December 3rd. The next two Thursdays will be social bowls, very suitable days for beginners to come and have a try.

Thursday rosters:- 19th Nov - P Sheather, J Towers, J McInnes / 26th November - J Cooper, M Humphrey, C C Smedley.

It is also hoped to get a shortened business bowls competition started in the new year.

Roll on!
